Figure 1: Supplemental: The full-length hammerhead construct used for structural determination.

Secondary structure of the Schistosoma hammerhead ribozyme showing the trans-cleaving construct design. The conserved nucleotides are numbered using the standard convention and are shown on a gray background. The enzyme cleavage site is indicated by a gray arrow pointing to the 3' end of the substrate.